REMINISCING

Old-time radio buffs have been honoring the radio stars of yesteryear annually since 1971, when our first old-time radio convention was held. The popularity of the conventions has grown steadily over the past 30 years. The first convention hosted 4 special guests. This year we are honoring over 30 actors, actresses, writers, producers, directors and technicians from the East and West Coasts who made the age of radio a truly golden era. What better way to pay tribute to all our guests than to meet them in person at this, our 29th annual convention of the FRIENDS OF OLD-TIME RADIO, and express the enjoyment their performances brought and still bring to us.

The FRIENDS OF OLD-TIME RADIO, Inc. is a group of fans and collectors who meet once a year for this non-profit convention. All monies collected are used for hotel, transportation and other convention costs.

The Allen Rockford Award was established in 1979 following the death of Allen Rockford at the age of 35 on March 29. Allen was coeditor with Don Richardson of Nostalgia Radio News, an excellent monthly OTR publication. The publication started when Allen started his coverage of stations in central New York and Canada carrying Old-time radio. This led to Nostalgia Radio News. Allen was active in putting early radio on central New York stations and carried his own show called Sounds of Yesterday for several years on WRVO-FM in Oswego. He was an announcer and newscaster for WONO in Syracuse for many years. With Don Richardson, Allen also ran Double-R-Radio, a business specializing in tapes and recordings of old-time radio shows. Allen was an authority on early radio and constantly helped anyone who needed it.

JACK BIVANS

Starting his professional career as a child actor in the dramatized Ovaltine commercials on the early Little Orphan Annie radio program, Jack Bivans became one of the nation's leading juvenile and young adult actors in the network dramatic shows, soap operas and children's programs originating from Chicago during radio's heyday.

The veteran performer starred in over 10,000 network radio broadcasts, frequently being heard on as many as five different programs fed thru four networks and beamed over 800 radio stations each day. He also did over 300 television shows and 150 films for business and industry.

In the very early 1940's Bivans was featured in a variety of roles on soap operas such as Painted Dreams, Houseboat Hannah, The Guiding Light, Backstage Wife, Romance of Helen Trent, and Ma Perkins (in which he played Ma's nephew, Junior Fitz, for several years).

Interrupted by two years overseas service in the Air Force during 1944 and 1945, Bivans' additional concurrent or overlapping contract parts included the roles of Chuck Ramsey in Captain Midnight (7 years); Clipper King in Sky King (5 years); Butch Brent in Road of Life (3 years); Jimmie Cullen in Helpmate (2 years).

In addition to the kid shows and soap operas, nights and weekends during the 1940's and 1950's found Bivans featured in most of the Chicago-originated hour and half-hour network comedy and dramatic programs including, Uncle Walter's Dog House, Hot Copy, Author's Playhouse, The Shadow, The Hermit, Crime Files of Flammond, Meet the Meeks, The First Line, America In The Air, and Arch Oboler's Lights Out.

MORTIMER H. FRANK

Mortimer Frank has a long and distinguished history as a music critic and journalist. A longtime contributing editor to Fanfare, he has written on music and literature for Opera News, International Record Review, Schwann-Opus, and The Chronicle of Higher Education. His published reviews and articles total over 500. He compiled and edited James Hunecker on Music and Musicians and has also served as historical recordings critic for National Public Radio. He has been honored with a Mellon Fellowship and a Grammy Award. Professor emeritus, City University of New York, Frank holds an M.A. in musicology and Ph.D. in English. He currently teaches at the Julliard School of Music in New York City.

Arturo Toscanini: The NBC Years has been in the making for 14 years. Frank's fascination with Toscanini started even earlier, in his twenties, stimulated by Toscanini's recordings of Beethoven. Frank went on to acquire all of his recordings and to read as much about the conductor as possible. Frank was a strong force in the creation of the Toscanini archive at Wave Hill, the maestro's New York home from 1941 to 1945, and he later served for many years as the curator of the archive. In that capacity he organized symposiums devoted to the conductor and was a consultant for the television broadcast and subsequent video "Toscanini: the Maestro."

JANE KEAN

Actress-singer Jane Kean's most widely recognized role is "Trixie," the long-suffering wife of Art Carney's "Norton" in the classic TV comedy Jackie Gleason's Honeymooners, which was telecast weekly, 1966-70, and as specials, 1971-78, on CBS-TV.

Before, after and even during her appearances on Honeymooners, the versatile Ms. Kean played the Palladium in London, performed on twenty-four Ed Sullivan variety TV shows, co-starred with Mickey Rooney in the 1977 Disney movie musical, "Pete's Dragon," appeared in dozens of TV programs and starred in five Broadway shows, including "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?"

Ms. Kean's career has been a series of successes which began almost by accident. Her older sister, Betty, an accomplished singer, dancer, and comedienne, was headed for an audition at New York City's Broadhurst Theatre. Jane, who had just returned to New York after six months schooling in London, accompanied Betty, "To give her moral support."

The producer of the play, "Hiya, Gentlemen" spotted the natural blonde Jane in the back of the theater, said she had the appearance of a key character he was casting, asked her to sing, and she won the part. The show opened in Hartford and ended in Boston but for Jane it was the beginning of her career as an international entertainer.

She went to Hollywood, won a role in the movie "Sailors on Leave," then, at her mother's request, returned to New York City where she studied at the Neighborhood Playhouse and developed a nightclub act of songs and impressions. She performed in New York's finest rooms, including the Copacabana, Versailles, and at the Waldorf Astoria.

"I was very fortunate to be seen by singer Kay Thompson, who had coached Judy Garland, and took me on as her protege. Kay played at my audition for the Broadway musical 'Early to Bed,' and I won the role of the soubrette. The show ran for more than a year."

"An agent saw me in 'Early to Bed' and soon after I had a movie contract with Fox, which -- unfortunately for me-- already had a stable of veteran voluptuous blondes, including Marilyn Monroe. My mother, who traveled with me, preferred New York City, so we returned to Broadway just in time to replace Jane Mansfield for six months in the lead of "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?"

As if fate was in command, both Keans - Jane and Betty - starred at the same time in different productions of the musical, "Call Me Mister." Jane was at the Shubert Theatre in New York City and Betty was in the touring national company. When both shows closed almost simultaneously and agent suggested they put together an act for television's Ed Sullivan Show. They did.

The singing, dancing, stylishly comedic Kern sisters were an immediate hit on the Sullivan Show. Nightclubs and theater offers poured in and they were among the world's most sought after entertainers, appearing regularly in New York City at The Roxy, The Paramount, The Strand, The Copacabana; as well as in Chicago at the Chez Paree. After Sir Lew Grade, the legendary producer in the United Kingdom, saw the Kern sisters at the Copacabana he brought them to London where they played the Palladium.

In addition, they starred on Broadway for nine months in the musical, "Ankles Away."

After the Honeymooners, Ms. Kean continued her wide-range of activities appearing with national companies, in films, on television, and at dinner theaters.

Among the television series Ms. Kean has guest-starred are Dallas, Facts of Life, General Hospital, Love, American Style, Growing Pains and Love Boat.

Ms. Kean continues to be active, starring in a number of touring shows including "Gypsy," "Barefoot in the Park," "On Golden Pond," "Driving Miss Daisy," Stephen Sondheim's "Follies" and "Fiddler on the Roof."

LOUISE O'BRIEN

Perhaps most famous as a featured singing star for four years on NBC's Sing Along With Mitch television show, Louise O'Brien has had an extensive career in theater, television and on the night club circuit. In addition, she was a frequent guest on the Tonight Show with Jack Paar and Johnny Carson; spent three seasons as singing star of CBS' Best in Music show, co-starred with Pat Boone on an ABC series; guested on the Arthur Godfrey Show, NBC Telephone Hour, The Red Skelton Show and made several television appearances with Merv Griffin, Joey Bishop, Regis Philbin and Phil Donohue.

Ms. O'Brien's theater appearances include "Music Man," "Oklahoma" (25th anniversary production), "Brigadoon," "Carousel," "South Pacific," "Guys & Dolls" and "Lil Abner." She was heard on radio with Art Linkletter, (House Party), Rusty Draper, Tex Ritter and Tennessee Ernie Ford. Her night club work has found her in Las Vegas, Aruba, Montreal, Chicago, New York City and Puerto Rico.

In 1984 she was the guest performer for the first US/Chinese Delegation Dinner in Los Angeles with Steve Allen as Master of Ceremonies. Over the years she has continued an active career singing on a variety of special programs.

JAMES PEGOLOTTI

James Pegolotti, born in 1933, grew up near Eureka, California in Northern California and could only hear the national network shows at night, when the San Francisco stations (270 miles to the south) could be heard. He gained a Ph.D. in chemistry from UCLA, then taught the subject for 15 years (St. Peter's College, Jersey City), then moved into college administration (Western Connecticut University), and later became a librarian there. He retired in 1999 to write a biography of Deems Taylor. He also writes concert reviews for the News-Times of Danbury, Connecticut.

TED AND RUTH REINHART

The marriage of Ted and Ruth Reinhart in 1955 not only united husband and wife, but gave root to an entertainment team which continues to endure today. Their show business background predates the afternoon their vows were spoken. Ruth began professional singing at age fourteen. Ted entered broadcasting as an eighteen year old. Their peers identify the Reinharts as "having a marriage made in music." Music brought them together and keeps them together, all over the nation. From Maine to Florida, Pennsylvania to California, Ted and Ruth have performed at most every conceivable venue.

They have worked along side with many of the major names in entertainment over TV and conventions. Twelve albums and numerous singles bear the Reinhart recording credits. Their legendary radio series which blankets Central Pennsylvania commenced in 1958, becoming the longest continuous running show in their state and third in the nation. Their annual telethon, which originated in 1975 to benefit the disabled, is one of the most successful in the United States.

The King and Queen of Nostalgia, as they re introduced on radio, well defines Ted and Ruth's music...nostalgic, pure and simple. "Western" is their specialty, but their shows include classic pop, big band and inspirational. A touch of comedy wends its way into all their performances.

Ted and Ruth Reinhart have been the recipients of over 35 awards for their performance abilities and dedication to their craft.

JEAN ROUVEROL

Jean Rouverol Butler is an actress, a teacher, a writer for books, magazines, television and film, a survivor of the blacklist and a member of the 1973 Women's Committee of the WGA's. Ms. Butler's screenplays include Legend of Lylah Clare, Face in the Rain, and So Young, So Bad. She has many Daytime Television credits, writing for such series as As the World Turns, Guiding Light and Search for Tomorrow. Her books include: Writing for Daytime Drama, Writing for the Soaps, Storm Wind Rising, Juarez, A Son of the People, Pancho Villa, A Biography, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Woman Crusader. She has also written novellas for magazines including McCalls, Housewife and Seventeen. Because of the blacklist, Ms. Butler lived in Mexico from 1951 to 1960, in Italy till 1963, and back in Mexico until the end of 1964. Then, when the blacklist was beginning to lift, she and her family returned to California. WGA's is currently restoring the credits on "Autumn Leaves" and investigating credit on "The Miracle," two uncredited films written (in collaboration) during the blacklist. ELENA VERDUGO

While she was never awarded a Universal contract, vivacious and stunning Elena Verdugo displayed her unique talent in two of the studio's classic horrors of the 1940's. Her performance in one of these films was to be among the finest to come out of any Universal chiller.

Verdugo was born April 20, 1925, in Paso Robles, California. She began training as a dancer at age five, and made her film debut in the western Cavalier of the West with Harry Carey, Sr. in 1931. However, it was as a teenager that she first attained notice for her screen work. In 1940, she appeared briefly but successfully in the film that launched Betty Grable to stardom, Down Argentine Way. The 20th Century Fox production also featured Don Ameche, Carmen Miranda, J. Carrol Naish and Leonid Kinskey.

Her work in the 1942 film The Moon and Sixpence resulted in even greater critical acclaim. It featured George Sanders as artist Paul Gauguin, and was based on W. Somerset Maugham's fictionalized account of the painter's life. The United Artists release also co-starred Herbert Marshall and Eric Blore. Verdugo was cast as a native girl romantically involved with Sander's character.

Her Universal debut, as well as her first venture into the realm of horror films, came in 1944. She was cast as Ilnka the gypsy girl in the all-star monster rally House of Frankenstein. The film featured almost all of the monster icons so popular in the 1940's, as well as many of the most recognizable stars of the genre.

Later that year, Verdugo appeared with Lon Chaney, Jr. again in The Frozen Ghost. The fourth of the studio's Inner Sanctum thrillers, it was also the final Universal credit for actress Evelyn Ankers.

Verdugo was cast in the role of Nina Coudreau, and found herself menaced by a psychopathic Martin Kosleck until Chaney saved her from a fiery death in the climactic scene. Although filmed in mid 1944, The Frozen Ghost didn't find its way into theaters until June 1945.

Verdugo would appear in both "A" and "B" pictures throughout the 1940's and 1950's. In 1949, she was featured opposite Johnny Weissmuller in the Jungle Jim feature The Lost Tribe. She also co-starred with Roland Winters in the Charlie Chan mystery Sky Dragon, which also featured Keye Luke and Mantan Moreland.

She was cast in another major release in 1950, appearing opposite Jose Ferrer and Mala Powers in Cyrano de Bergerac. Also on hand were two other well-known Universal horror film alumni, Virginia Christine and Lloyd Corrigan. Ferrer garnered an Oscar for his performance in the 17th century tale.

During this period, Verdugo became a favorite leading lady in western films, appearing opposite some of the biggest names of the genre. She worked with the ever popular Gene Autry in The Big Sombrero in 1949, and Gene Autry and the Mounties in 1951. In the former title, she gave Autry his first screen kiss in a Columbia feature.

She appeared alongside Charles Starrett, the Durango Kid, in Columbia's El Dorado Pass in 1949. The next year she worked with her friend Kirby Grant in one of his popular Northwest Mountie titles for Monogram Pictures, Snow Dog. Grant had been in attendance at Verdugo's wedding four years earlier. In 1952 she was back at Columbia, co-starring with George Montgomery in The Pathfinder.

Television was becoming more than a novelty in the early 1950's, and many Hollywood stars were beginning to appear in the medium quite frequently. Verdugo did so as well, and was cast in the title role for the series "Meet Millie" by CBS in 1952. The program was a hit and continued on the airwaves until 1956. Other regulars on the program were Marvin Kaplan, Roland Winters, Ross Ford and Florence Halop. Verdugo and Kaplan have maintained a close friendship to this day.

The actress continued her film and television work into the 1960's. In 1969, she returned to Universal again for yet another television series. The ABC network drama "Marcus Welby, M.D." debuted that year, following a successful TV movie, with Robert Young in the title role. It would run until 1976. So popular was the program that Young would become the nation's archetypical family practitioner. Verdugo and James Brolin headed the supporting cast, she as receptionist Consuelo Lopez and he as the brash young Dr. Steven Kiley.

Verdugo and Young were featured in a reunion show, "The Return of Marcus Welby, M.D." in 1984.

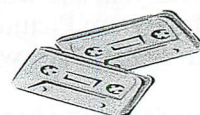

JOHN BUCK WILKIN

John Buck Wilkin, the son of Marjorie Wilkin (author of the country classic "Long Black Veil"), is most noted as a session guitarist on numerous country and rock records of the 1970s, particularly outlaw country releases by Waylon Jennings, Kris Kristofferson, Kinky Friedman, and Jessi Colter. He was also a songwriter and put out a little-known solo LP, In Search of Food, Clothing, Shelter, Sex on Liberty. The record was easygoing, though sometimes moodily eccentric, country-folk-rock with frequent orchestration. Prior to his solo album, Wilkin had been in Ronnie and the Daytonas, famous for their 1964 hot rod hit "Little GTO." Wilkin was also in the American Eagles (not to be confused with the much more famous Eagles), who also included keyboardist Chuck Leavell.

1-877-RXplace

RX Saving Place LLC in affiliation with our Canadian pharmacy source offers amazing savings on medications. There are no hidden fees or charges; the prices are legitimately between 30 to 80% lower than most US prices.

There are several reasons for this.

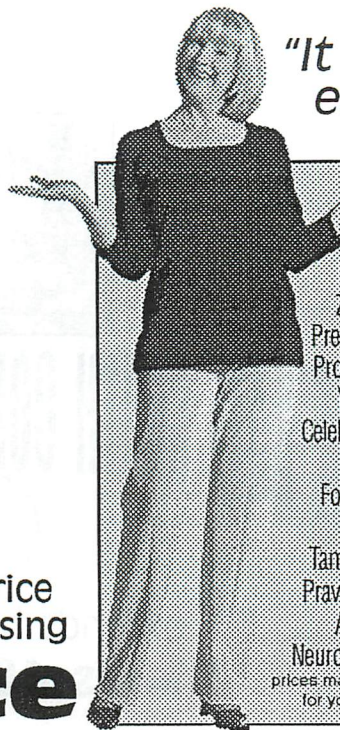

First, in Canada, medication prices are negotiated with drug companies by the government. This leads to strict regulation of drug prices, whereas in America, drug companies can charge much higher prices. Second, drug companies cannot market their medications directly to the consumer in Canada. How often have you seen a commercial urging you to ask your Doctor about some colored pill. The reduction in these advertising costs is passed off as savings to the consumer. Also, with the US dollar trading at a significant advantage to the Canadian, there are additional savings.

Our affiliated pharmacy source offers some of the lowest prices among the online Canadian pharmacies and always remain competitive. They have received much exposure in the past for their great prices and established association with various reputable pharmacy chains and manufacturers.

Please note savings are not available on all drugs. The majority is less expensive, but there are some exceptions.

There are amazing savings available when purchasing from Canadian Online Pharmacies, but you must ensure that you are buying from the right source. Not all online pharmacies are legitimate, legal operations run by real pharmacists. Before initiating any dealings with online pharmacies, it is a good idea to verify their licensure. Our pharmacy source is a legitimate enterprise owned and operated by licensed pharmacists in British Columbia. Their affiliated pharmacy is licensed by the regulatory body on British Columbia, the College of Pharmacists. The pharmacy is run by registered, experienced Canadian pharmacists..

These are quality medications.

The Canadian government has very strict requirements for the manufacturing of medication in Canada. These requirements are very similar to the requirements in the US. Some of the drugs sold in Canada are actually manufactured in the US and repackaged for sale in Canada.

Generic medications are all manufactured in Canada under Canada's stringent requirements. Based on population alone, the market is producing and importing more drugs into the Canadian marketplace into a smaller population, thus causing a great deal of competition. The competition alongside of Canadian Manufacturing has enabled amazing cost savings for American and foreign clients.

To discover the cost savings on your prescriptions email or call us toll free with your prescription requirements and we will be happy to give you a free, no obligation price quote.
